The Coordinator's Corner - Nemi

In a letter of August 31, the Generalate appointed the then Director of Anthropos, Fr. Ennio Mantovani, as the new Coordinator of the Anthropos Institute "International" (CAI).

The Anthropos Institute International is not a new organization which has been created to stand beside or to replace the traditional Anthropos Institute. What is really new in the Anthropos Institute is that, now, there is somebody who is free and has the responsibility for every member of the Anthropos Institute, for those who study in the field of social and religious sciences, and for the institutes in which they work, if they are linked with Anthropos. The adjective "international" stresses a quality which was and is essential to the Anthropos Institute and is central to the responsibility of the Coordinator.

The task of the Coordinator, according to the letter of the Generalate, is "to animate, coordinate and revitalise the Anthropos tradition in the Society around the world." This animation and revitalization can build only on what already exists and therefore the first action of the new Coordinator was to talk with all the confreres in Asia and the Pacific who had a degree and were active in the social and religious fields and to visit the institute in which they were working.

The coordinator was able to present to and discuss with the Generalate a report on his findings with suggestions for strengthening and improving the considerable presence of the "Anthropos tradition" in Asia and the Pacific. A further result of the trip was the nomination of six new members of Anthropos from that zone, enriching the Institute with the first Indonesian and the first Filipino member. India increased its number of full Anthropos members to four.

One of the confreres observed to the coordinator: "It is the first time that somebody is free to come and talk to us as anthropologists about our work, our plans, our visions, and our problems." What I think is - even more important for the Anthropos Institute - that what the members say and suggest will be heard in the Generalate. The coordinator, as a matter of fact, has a voice in the Generalate in a similar way to that of the other coordinators working in Rome. I think, these are steps in the right direction that bode well for the revitalization of our Anthropos Institute.

The Coordinator plans to continue what he did in the Asia Pacific Zone in the other Zones as well and he hopes to be able to report to all members about it in the next Interlink.

Ennio Mantovani

From the Director's Desk

Through the installation of the new Coordinator of Anthropos International in Nemi (Roma), Fr. Ennio Mantovani SVD, the staff of the Anthropos Institute of St. Augustine is content to see a real possibility to get in vivid contact with all SVD-members trained in anthropology and related matters as well as interested confreres in matters of inculcation of the Gospel, preservation of traditional cultural traits, and modern cultural changes. The staff looks for a revitalization of the academic and personal exchange between members of the Institute, missionaries on the grassroots and the staff in St. Augustine in view of an actualisation of our publications and a major contribution towards the missionary task of the Church. We wish Ennio a good start at Nemi and a widespread acceptance of his new office.

Obituary

Fr. Karl Müller SVD (1918 – 2001)

Fr. Müller was born on January 25, 1918 in Blankenberg, East-Prussia. He entered the Minor Seminary of St. Adalbert in Mehlsack (today Pieniężno, Poland) in 1930. He finished his High School studies in the Minor Seminary of Holy Cross in Neisse, Silesia, in 1937. In the same year, he began his novitiate in St. Johann, Blönried, Germany, and in 1939, his philosophical studies in St. Augustin, interrupted from 1940 to 1945 through the World War II. Ordained in 1948, he continued his studies of Missiology at the Gregorian University in Rome, which he concluded with the DD in Missiology in 1952. Ten years later, he supplemented his studies by a DD in Theology at the University of Münster, Germany. During this time, K.M. carried out different tasks in St. Augustin and St. Pius-College, Munich. In 1962, he was appointed Secretary of Studies at the Generalate in Rome, where he became Vice-Superior General in 1967. Appointed Secretary of Mission in 1977, he returned to St. Augustin in 1983, where he became Director of the Anthropos Institute (until 1986), Professor of Missiology at St. Augustin's Faculty (until 1986), and Director of the Missiological Institute (until 1993). He died on February 20, 2001, in St. Wendel, suffering of renal insufficiency during the last years.

Many missiological publications turned him well-known worldwide. Several of his books have been translated into English and other languages. The Vatican appointed him official Consultor in the Mission Committee of the Ecumenical World Council of Churches (CWME). His special interest aimed at ecumenical cooperation in the field of mission and mission theology of the different Churches and Christian denominations.

The Anthropos Institute's Report

The year 2001 was characterized by the international consultations regarding the coordination task of the Institute. On January 27, 2001, there was a meeting in Rome of the Council of the Anthropos Institute (AI) and the General Council. At that meeting it was decided to create an "ad hoc"-committee to reassess the goals and structure of the AI in view of its future development. The "ad hoc"-committee, composed of Leo Kleden, Ennio Mantovani, Joachim Piepke, Augustin Kanjamala, Roger Schroeder, Gerhard Lesch, and Edênio Valle, met in St. Augustin from April 16 to 21 of 2001 and presented a series of recommendations to the General Council. The recommendations were also sent to all voting members of AI around the world for critique and for their comments. After a series of meetings of the General Council in August 2001, the Generalate approved "in principle" the recommendations of the "ad hoc"-committee for the reorganization of the AI. This approval was given "ad experimentum" until June of 2005, i.e. one year before the next general chapter.

The reorganization of the AI entails the appointment of a Coordinator for what is now called "Anthropos International." The former Director of AI, Fr. Ennio Mantovani, has been appointed Coordinator of Anthropos International (CAI) on August 31, 2001. His term concludes with the end of the current triennium in the European Zone on April 30, 2004. The CAI established his "base of operations" in Nemi. The traditional activities of the AI St. Augustin will continue as before, at least to the extent that they do not conflict with those assigned to the CAI. The same can be said of the Statutes of the AI. Those parts which deal with the activities of AI St. Augustin will remain in effect until the entire statutes can be revised to reflect the new situation of Anthropos International. The Generalate appointed Fr. Joachim Piepke Director of the Institute for the current triennium on September 14, 2001.

The Anthropos Training Program (ATP) showed his first fruits. From the three candidates trained in German and editorial tasks during the years of 1995 and 1996 – 1997, Fr. Ivan Lobo initiated his anthropological studies at the University of Heidelberg on October 2001.

Our homepage (www.anthropos-journal.de) has been updated last October. The web-frequentation is relatively high at an average of 2.500 contacts per month. The homepage is linked with several universities and institutes of anthropology. A nonprofit research website, www.masks.org, has published two Anthropos-articles (Birch de Aguilar: Masks, Society, and Hierarchy among the Chewa of Central Malawi, A 90.1995: 407-421; Handelman: The Ritual Clown, A 54. 1981: 321-370) in its section "Library/Research Articles." This website is visited by 400.000 people per year.

Anthropos 96.2001 counts 704 pages, i.e., 23 articles on 387 pages, 13 reports and comments on 72 pages, 117 book reviews on 162 pages. 120 authors had collaborated, among them 10 SVD-members resp. missionaries. 52 new manuscripts have been offered. Following AI-members reviewed books: Brandewie, Gächter, Kupisiński, Nawrot, Pawlik, Piepke, Quack.

Studia Instituti Anthropos produced its 48th volume: Boris Wastiau: Mahamba. The Transforming Arts of Spirit Possession among the Luvale-Speaking People of the Upper Zambezi. 358 pp. with 32 photographs and 4 plates. Boris Wastiau is one of the curators for central African art and ethnography at the Royal Museum for Central Africa in Belgium. He studied at the Free University of Brussels, where he received his degree in the social sciences and anthropology, the University of Coimbra, and the University of East Anglia, where he received his PhD in 1998.

Anthropology & Mission N° 23 appeared in July 2001, presenting 25 new books and 10 articles, and Anthropology & Mission N° 24 in December 2001, presenting 23 books and 13 articles. Among them, the following are remarkable: Olikenyi: African Hospitality. A Model for the Communication of the Gospel in the African Cultural Context (DD-Thesis Missionspriesterseminar St. Augustin, 53), Gittins (ed.): Life and Death Matters. The Practice of Inculuration in Africa (Studia Inst. Miss. SVD, 72), Tule: Longing for the House of God. Dwelling in the House of the Ancestors. Local Belief, Christianity, and Islam among the Kéo of Central Flores (PhD-Thesis Canberra, MS 2001), Piepke (ed.): Einheitsglaube oder Einheit im Glauben (Missionspriesterseminar St. Augustin, 52), Valle: The Process of Religious Life in Brazil (Social Compass 48), Vallipalam: The Impact of Consecrated Life in Indian Society (Social Compass 48), Amaldoss: Religious Pluralism and Mission (Social Compass 48).

Every last number of Anthropology & Mission is also published in the web of the SVD-Intranet site: www.svdworld.intranets.com/ If you do not have access to this site, please contact Fr. Niels Johansen (svd-communications@pcn.net). He will give you the password.

received the approval of a two-year project entitled “Research of Mangyan Cultural Texts” by the Toyota Foundation. The ultimate aim of the project is the publication of an essential handbook of traditional Mangyan prose and poetry, arranged according to their lifecycle, in a bilingual production of Mangyan and Tagalog, the Philippine National Language, with numerous illustrations by indigenous artists, assisted by Filipino counterparts.

The secondary aim is to make the knowledge of the Mangyan Culture available to the Mangyan youth who nowadays no longer learn it from their elders in the traditional way, due to the modern influences the Mangyan children are exposed to, and the national effort of the Philippine Government to open up Public Schools with a regular, modern education.

The reason for the Tagalog translation of the Mangyan texts, to be made by the Mangyans themselves, is to make these cultural texts available to the other Mangyan tribes as well, so as encourage them to preserve their own culture, as yet unrecorded, and write it down before the knowledge of it would have been lost. With Tagalog, the national language, as the medium, the original Mangyan texts would be understood.

During the first stage completed inclusive November 2001, he selected the best materials available at the Mangyan Research Center in Panaytayan, as well as at the Mangyan Heritage Center in Calapan, both in the Province of Oriental Mindoro.

Since he is the advisor and coordinator for the three Mangyan cultural experts, he made available to them the bulk of the cultural materials already collected by him in the past by means of the tape recorder and partly transcribed and typed out in tentative draft copies. The Mangyans selected the materials most suited for the project, eliminating the duplicates and redundancies, and making a decision on the definite selection and its tentative arrangement.

This entailed a huge amount of correcting, adding, and rewriting of certain portions, arranging the materials based on a logical sequence of the Mangyan life cycle as expressed in the texts and divide the whole into various chapters and topics, providing a title to each chapter and to the individual topics it contained.

His task is all this is to help the Mangyans, who are very knowledgeable in their own culture, but lack the experience of harmonizing the whole in a smoothly running text, to make it acceptable to modern standards of arranging and editing, so as to make it pleasant reading for the Mangyans themselves, especially the younger generation, for which it was mainly intended.

In between all these activities, he responded to requests for lectures about the Mangyans and general Philippine pre-Spanish Culture at Universities, Seminars, and Museums training sessions. Aside from this he wrote a few articles on the history of Mindoro, which was subsequently published.

is Director of and Lecturer at the Melanesian Institute, Goroka, PNG, and PNG MER coordinator (until September 2001). He presented the paper "The Pattern of Urbanization in PNG and Its Pastoral Implications" at the SVD-ASPAMIR-Symposium of Mumbai in October 2001 ("Urbanization in Asia Pacific"). He did research on "Land and Churches in Irian Jaya, Indonesia" and on the status of the new refugees from Irian Jaya in Vanimo for Caritas Oceania, New Zealand. On the request of church workers in the diocese of Kiunga, he prepared the paper "Inculcation of the Catholic Church: Official Guidelines and Possible Models," used for a two week workshop on inculcation.

He published "Who Do You Say I Am? – Report and Reflections on the International Missiological Congress (Rome October 2000)." Catalyst 31.2001/1; "Toward a Positive Theology of Cultures." Catalyst 31.2001/2.

Institute of Indian Culture - Mumbai

The Institute of Indian Culture (IIC) in Mumbai (Bombay) with the Director S. M. Michael SVD celebrated the Silver Jubilee on December 9, 2001. Chief Guest was the Very Reverend Fr. Antonio Pernia, SVD, Superior General, Rome. The program included a Thanksgiving Eucharist, Graduation Ceremony, Cultural Program, Blessing of the new Chapel, and Dinner. Founded in 1976 by Fr. Stephen Fuchs, SVD, the Institute today cooperates with the University of Mumbai on graduation level.

Sanskriti – Indore

Some of the newest activities of Sanskriti – Center for Applied Cultural Research are making the people translate the Missal and Bible into their own dialects such as Bhilali of the Bhilalas and Bharelas, and Nimadi spoken by high and low castes of the neighborhood. Lay people also compile dictionary/glossary in Bhilali, Nimadi, Bhili, and Patliya. Each of this dialects is spoken by over two million people, but the people do not have anything written in their dialects to call it their own. To support people's effort, the Center also documents songs, hymns, and folklores on themes such as the Bible, awareness, animation, liturgy, etc. The experience shows that such things published on audio or video cassettes, people understand that they are recognized, accepted, and treated with equality and humanness. Due to such activities there is a tremendous impact on people.

Melanesian Institute – Goroka

The Melanesian Institute offered: a two weeks orientation course for expatriate church workers in PNG in January 2001, 40 lectures on "Traditional Melanesian Religions" at the University of Goroka (February – June), 20 lectures on the "Gospel of Mark" at the same university (February – June), a two week “Seminar on Inculturation” for church personnel in Kiunga (June), a two week course on “Introduction to Social Anthropology” to the major seminarians of Vanimo (July), four two days workshops on “Third World Contemporary Christologies” to four SVD District Conferences (April – May), and four evening talks on “Catholic Social Teaching” to the Catholic students at Lae University of Technology (August).

The major research in the last three years has been called “Land and Churches in Melanesia.” It deals with land granted or leased by the State to the churches. This land is often claimed back by the customary landowners. Surveys and seminars have been held by the Institute on the subject.

Birthdays and Jubilees
